

Hello to the soon-to-be Year 7!

I'm Mr Williams, one of the Science teachers here at The Orme Academy, and I'll be your form tutor when you enter Year 7. I imagine many of you are excited to be starting secondary school, but I'm sure all of you will be a little nervous too. This is a completely natural feeling when starting something new. I still remember how nervous I was when I started, many years ago! I hope to put a lot of your concerns to rest when I first meet you in the first days of the school year.

As your form tutor, I will do my best to ensure that you feel valued, make good progress in your subjects and are equipped with knowledge and skills that will serve you well for the rest of your life. In return, I and the school expect you to do and be of your best. This means working hard, being kind, embracing new experiences, being resilient when times are tough and doing what you can to enjoy your time in school.

I hope you all have a fantastic conclusion to Year 6, and a restful summer break. I look forward to meeting you soon.

Take care,

Mr J Williams
